

Alamy Jean- Pierre, M. Éd.

I am a dedicated professional with a robust academic background in psychology, specializing in educational psychology, complemented by a master's degree in education and technology, often referred to as e-learning. An IREX fellow and YLAI program participant with over a decade of rich experience, I have carved a niche in the realm of education and technology, serving in multifaceted roles that include being a teacher, consultant, and specialist.

My expertise extends to diverse areas such as marketing consultancy, pedagogical administration, content development, and more. I am deeply committed to my homeland as a fervent patriot, a passion that is reflected in my role as the editor-in-chief of Omniscient Info, a prominent education-focused media outlet.

In my current capacity as a tech evangelist, I am on a dedicated mission to disseminate knowledge and facilitate training across all 10 departments of Haiti, focusing on leveraging technology to enhance educational outcomes.

I am open to offering my expertise to a broad spectrum of clients, including government bodies, private individuals, and both national and international organizations. My professional journey has taken me across the following six countries: United States of America, Belgium, Jamaica, Dominican Republic, Canada, and Ukraine, where I have actively worked within their educational systems. Furthermore, as part of the US International Visitor Leadership Program \(IVLP\), I have collaborated with over 13 international education ministries, guiding them in effectively integrating and understanding the nuances of educational technology. More information is available at www.jpalamy.com.

Let's keep in touch:

- LinkedIn
- X (Twitter)
- Facebook